

Exercise that doesn't feel like exercise

We could all move more throughout the day, but making time for it can be downright challenging. We've got you covered! Hour by hour, here's a list of ways to sneak more movement into your day.

-  6AM: Cool off in the shower. The colder your shower, the more work your body is doing to heat itself. Every single goose bump you get is the action of a tiny muscle, and it counts.
-  8AM: Add a few steps to your commute. Taking the bus? Walk to a further stop before you hop on. Driving the whole way to work? Park at a farther spot. A few minutes of walking can have big benefits.
-  9AM: Create a dynamic workstation. Try getting into the habit of sitting on the edge of your chair (no slouching), crossing your legs (or just one) in your chair, or standing up.
-  10AM: Take stretch breaks. Reach and stretch your arms overhead at least every 30 minutes or so.
-  12PM: Lunch outside, anyone? Let your body experience the cold, the heat, the rain and the snow. We're accustomed to letting external tools regulate our temperature, but our body was the first central heating system!
-  2PM: Give your eyes a screen break. Looking away from your screen helps you use the full range of motion of your eyes and can help maintain eye health.
-  6PM: Chew your dinner. The jaw muscles are some of the most powerful in the body. Give your jaw a workout by swapping out processed foods, which tend to be softer than whole foods and veggies.
-  7PM: Go for a walk after dinner. Take a walk around the block with the family, make it a date with a loved one, or go solo to reset for the day—it helps with digestion and helps the kids burn some energy before bed.
-  8PM: Skip the couch during TV time and sit on the floor. It opens up your hips and lets your knees work at different angles.

The best part? You won't need to do those things alone.

Whether you want to lose weight, eat better, move more, or have more energy, Omada's science-based approach helps you shift your mindset and change your health.

You'll get a plan built around you, and the support of a dedicated health coach, weekly lessons, and a wireless smart scale—all at no cost to you.

Get started in just 1 minute:

omadahealth.com/cuhealthplan